EXPERIENCE IN INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY/TELECOMMUNICATIONS/INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Gabriela handles the full spectrum of intellectual property work from litigation to licensing, strategic advice and portfolio management.

Gabriela is one of the most respected IP lawyers in Asia. Well-known in the market for coming up with the solution for the company name hijacking problem in Hong Kong, Gabriela advises a number of well-known brands on pan-Asian branding strategies and handles complex trade mark/passing off litigation for them coupled with domain name work for which she is also well known. She has been involved in high-profile media transactions and litigation, and has advised on complex licensing and franchising deals and disputes involving royalty fees. Gabriela has been involved in lobbying for changes to copyright legislation in Hong Kong and has devised strategies for dealing with online piracy.

On the information technology side, Gabriela's particular expertise includes advising on complex IT transactions and projects, IT outsourcing, cloud-computing, mobile payments, smart card projects, the regulation of encryption technology, software licensing, and disputes stemming from failed IT projects. She has been involved with a number of international organisations in discussions involving standard setting for the cross-border transfer of data and the formulation of strategies to deal with cyber-security.

Gabriela has been involved in a number of high-profile media transactions and litigation including signal piracy litigation during the last three FIFA World Cups on behalf of cable operators and free-to-air licencees, and litigation relating to 'must-carry' and re-transmission rights under the Copyright Ordinance. She has advised collecting societies in relation to licensing deals and disputes involving royalty fees.

Gabriela has extensive experience advising on regulatory and transactional telecommunications matters in Asia. She has advised incumbent operators in Asia on the impact of the introduction of regulation and liberalisation of their respective markets and has substantive experience dealing with the anti-competition provisions in the telecoms law in Hong Kong.
